

What do you do if...

1. Pre-match you look at the coaches' challenge match sheets and you notice that one school does not have the athletic director's signature
2. You are about to start the team introductions and a coach advises you that his second singles player is making up a test and will be a little late
3. You are called to a court during the ten minute warm-up and one player has aggravated a shoulder injury and cannot continue
4. A player calls you to the court during the match and informs you that his opponent's father who is among the spectators is reacting negatively to his line calls
5. A coach comes to you and complains that a doubles player on the opposing team is foot-faulting
6. It is 4-2 in the second set tie-break and a player calls you to the court and asks for a toilet break
7. It is 6-1 in a second set tiebreak. The player who is ahead has already received a code violation and he misses an easy overhead and he throws his racquet in anger
8. During the first set of a match you notice that one of the players is not in a team uniform
9. You glance over and observe someone, who is not one of the coaches, is talking to a player at the fence during a changeover
10. A ball falls out of a player's pocket and on to the court during the playing of a point. The opponent stops play and claims the point. You are called to the court
11. A player calls you to the court and complains that his opponent is serving before he is ready to receive the serve
12. You hear one of the coaches or spectators frequently calling out comments like "That's it, stay aggressive", "Move your feet" & "Keep attacking the Net"
13. You are standing on-court and you overrule a ball which a player called out, but the player returned the ball to the opponent's court. The overruled player claims a replay of the point
14. During a match a coach says that he has an emergency, has to leave and will be back in 15 minutes. There are no other coaches from that school at the match
